

LOAN BOOSTERS HOPE TO EXCEED GOAL SET

Committee Working Hard to Better $10,000,000 Minimum.

With more than $3,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds already subscribed by the people of Washington, and with five more working days in which to boost the amount up above the $10,000,000 mark which has been set as the minimum, the Liberty loan committee of the District and the several scores of volunteer speakers are driving ahead in their educational campaign, confident that Washington will greatly over-subscribe its quota.

Although yesterday was a busy day for the Liberty loan boosters, with scores of speeches scheduled for all sections of the city, today promises to be even busier. Besides the numerous divisions of the government departments, the committee is receiving calls hourly from merchants, manufacturers and other business men, requesting that speakers be sent to explain the Liberty bonds to their employees.

Already 55 per cent of the employees of the Postoffice Department have subscribed to the Liberty bonds, officials told Secretary Eugene E. Thompson, yesterday, and it is expected that the majority of the remaining 45 per cent will become Liberty bond owners.

Col. W. W. Harris has arranged to have representatives of the committee address the audiences at Marine Band concerts between now and the 15th of June, when subscriptions close. The first of these addresses is to be made this afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock at the White Lot, when A. E. Seymour will be the speaker.

The committee is continuing its campaign of speaking in the various theaters.

LAWYERS ASKED TO DO BIT.
William W. McLean, treasurer of the Bar Association, has issued a call to all members to do their "bit" for the Red Cross. Because of the war the annual outing of the association has been omitted, it has been suggested that each member contribute $5, the price of a ticket to the affair, to the Red Cross.

Judge Sends Man to Farm Instead of Penitentiary

Norman Standford, a former mail carrier, instead of sending the summer in a Federal penitentiary has been allowed by Justice Gould, in Criminal Court No. 1, to spend a term as a farm hand in Maryland, his home State.

Standford pleaded guilty to charges of rifling the mails when arraigned May 4. He was represented by former district attorney for Harford County, Md., who convinced the court that Standford was badly needed by his employer to cultivate and harvest the crops. The case was continued indefinitely.

COLLUSION CHARGED TO OBTAIN DIVORCE

Justice Stafford Dismisses Suit Brought by Ethel Lanston.

Because of alleged collusion between husband and wife to obtain a divorce, Justice Stafford sitting in Equity Court, yesterday dismissed the suit of Ethel V. Lanston for absolute divorce from Aubrey Lanston, globe trotter and magazine writer.

Mrs. Lanston filed suit in April, 1916, for absolute divorce, charging her husband with misconduct. Previous to this Mrs. Lanston filed suit in September, 1915, for limited divorce, which afterwards developed into a suit for maintenance. In this case Justice Stafford signed a decree that the wife was to receive four-fifths of all money due her husband from the estate of Tolbert Lanston, of which the American Security and Trust Company is trustee.

In the suit for absolute divorce, which the court heard Thursday, the Trust company was ordered to pay the counsel fees of the defendant out of the money due him. The couple were married in April, 1910. They have two children.

The silver output for the last year, 67,500,000 ounces, while never exceeded in quantity except once in this country, falls below the record of several other years in value because of low prices last year.

No Uniformed Men Can Now Buy Drinks

Naval Officers, Marine Corps members and enlisted men in uniform are barred from buying or being given intoxicating liquors by the provisions of the selective draft law, according to an opinion submitted to Secretary of the Navy by Attorney General Gregory late yesterday afternoon. The restriction had already been applied to the army.

STAIRS WERE TRICKY 'TIL POLICEMAN CAME
Confederate Veterans Objected to Having Volunteer General.

When Arch Krimmer, colored, woke up from a stupor Thursday night at his home, 318 street southwest, he hunted all around for the stairs, but they were not there. He let out a yell and the window and asked the nearest policeman to go back with him and find his missing stairs. The policeman found them, and arrested Krimmer. In Police Court Krimmer said he did not even know he had been arrested until the next morning.

The court fined him $10 for being drunk.

Couldn't Instruct "Vets."
John Coates, of Durham, N. C., was watching the lining up of a company of veterans at Sixth and D streets Thursday morning. He did not like the way they stood in line or the way they held their flags. He tried to tell them, but they would not listen. He was arrested and taken to Police Court.

The court fined him $10 for over-indulgence in whiskey.

Drank Music and Whiskey.
Carrie Cropp, an elderly white woman, was watching the parade from Sixth street Thursday morning. She told the court, "This was not in my mind, but I was drunk on whiskey. A policeman found her on a bench in Judiciary Square and arrested her. She was fined $10."

Didn't Drink Shoes.
Dink McCarthy took one drink on Thursday, he told the court, and before he had "settled," his shoes and money were gone. "I didn't swallow them, too," he said. "I don't think you have the willpower to stop drinking," said the court; "$10 fine."

To Visit Occoquan Garden.
"Judge, if you send me to Occoquan garden, I will get the best of my garden," pleaded Nellie Hitt, an elderly white woman, with her head bandaged up, in Police Court yesterday morning.

"I can't help it," said the court, "you ought to have thought of your vegetables first." The court sent her to Mr. Whitaker's "garden" at Occoquan for thirty days.

Tied in Swearing Match.
A policeman strolling around Blagden Court the day of the parade noticed Andrew Miller and Annie Briscoe, both colored trying to out-swear each other. He arrested them, and was put on parade.

Soldier Secrets Kept.
"Did you take your uniform off to buy liquor?" asked the court of Private William E. Green, of the First Regiment of Engineers, stationed at the barracks. Green said he did not, but could not explain why he was not in uniform with the country at war. Green saluted the judge, and was put on parole.

Another soldier, George H. Thompson, of the Engineer Band at Fort Myer, in uniform, let his own defense go to avoid telling the name of the man who furnished him with liquor. On promise of the military authorities that Thompson would be punished by them, he was put on parole.

FEWER APPLICATIONS FOR ENLISTMENT HERE

Sergeant Hunt Proposes to Use Camels to Boost Recruiting.

There was a falling off in the number of enlistments at practically all recruiting stations in Washington yesterday, except at the Naval Reserve and Marine Corps offices, where thirteen men and women were given war duty positions. The women will be used largely for clerical work, while some of the men will be detailed on submarine chasers.

At the army tent station in Pennsylvania avenue, only two applicants were tentatively accepted for enlistment subject to more detailed physical examination.

Sergeant Hunt, on duty on this station, said that as a result of the crowds attending the parade yesterday, the number of applicants for the past week with the exception of yesterday, evening, was materially lessened. Many country boys who came in to see the parade without any thought of joining the army, were attracted to the tent and signed up once the merits of the service was explained to them.

It is a police permit can be secured, Sergeant Hunt is planning to have four camels from the District National Guard, to parade through the city streets bearing enlistment posters to the public.

There were two applicants yesterday for the Coast Artillery and battery units of the District National Guard, but they were not enlisted as waiters for minor physical defects will have to be secured.

Victim in Love Fight Dies in Hospital Here

William A. Cavanaugh, 19 years of age, who was assaulted with an iron bar near Poneswood, Westmoreland County, Pa., on May 31, died yesterday morning at the Washington Hospital. Coroner Nevitt has been notified by Attorney Baker, of Westmoreland County, of his intention to have a physician to perform an autopsy.

The death of young Cavanaugh, a result of an affair between Cavanaugh and Horace Peed, alleged assailant of Cavanaugh, both of whom, it is said, were in love with the same girl, a Miss Myrtle Carpenter. A grand jury will convene at Monrovia the fourth of this month to consider the charge.

Ignorance of Excise Law Gets Two Into Trouble

Henderson Walker and William A. Jackson both colored residents of Alken, S. C., are in the clutches of the law because of their ignorance. It is alleged that the two men bought some liquor in Baltimore and delivered it in this city to a local express office and attempted to have it shipped back South without labeling it in compliance with the excise laws. At a preliminary hearing yesterday morning in police court, Attorney Cobb appeared for the defendants, waived examination and furnished bond. Jackson's bond was fixed at $2,000 and that of Walker, $1,000.

DISTRICT BATTERIES MAY USE MOTOR CARS
War Department Announces More Changes in Artillery.

Members of Batteries "A" and "B" of the District National Guard are much interested in the announcement made by the War Department that additional units of this branch of the service are to be motorized. In the past, with the exception of one unit of heavy field artillery at Honolulu, H. I., all mounted branches of the United States Army, including the cavalry, have used horses.

Except for the fact that cavalry often has to leave the broad highway and make its way through very rough country, regular army officers think that the branch of the service might very well be "motorized" too. It would effect a great saving to the government, it is explained, for one cheap car costing only as much as two cavalry horses could carry four troops comfortably.

At present the Ninth United States Heavy Field Artillery uses the Holt tractor. Announcement has been made by the War Department that a new type of tractor, combining power, speed and ability to turn in its own length, has been developed for hauling field pieces of medium calibre as well as the heavier field guns. The introduction of the new tractor will result in the elimination of horses for artillery purposes almost entirely.

Gen. William E. Harvey, commander of the District Guard, states yesterday that he was particularly anxious that a large number of young men of Washington enlist in the artillery organizations. He pointed out that in these days the advance of infantry is almost wholly dependent on the artillery with its "curtain of fire." For this reason, he wants the local guard forces to be strong in this branch of the service. The two District troop organizations are now at war strength, but both batteries need a number of recruits.

Brazil decided to open a bureau, possibly because the British and American fleets off its coast vitally needed wireless weather and storm forecasts for their protection. The agriculture interests have been pleading for weather forecasts, and also the local shipping interests.
